

Bladder

Object Card

Plains Indians used every part of the buffalo, even the bladder. Being able to hold a liquid without leaking made them a very good water container. When it got too worn to hold water the bladder was folded and used to store small items like porcupine quills.

