

Scapula Bone

Object Card

Plains Indians made hoes from the buffalo's scapula bone. They sharpened the edge of the bone and then fastened it to a stick with rawhide. Women used these hoes to work the soil in their fields. They grew corns, beans, and squash. Hoes were also used to move soil when building or repairing earthlodge or grass lodge homes.

