Rice County Jail & Sheriff’s Residence
Name of Property: Rice County Jail & Sheriff’s Residence

Narrative Description
(Describe the historic and current physical appearance and condition of the property. Describe contributing and noncontributing resources, if applicable. Begin with a summary paragraph that briefly describes the general characteristics of the property, such as its location, type, style, method of construction, setting, size, and significant features. Indicate whether the property has historic integrity.)

Summary
The Rice County Jail and Sheriff’s Residence is a two-story Prairie-style structure with a rectangular plan. It is constructed of dark red brick and has a red terra cotta tile hipped-roof. Porches are centered on three of its four sides, with the fourth side having an expanded metal fire escape. The interior reflects the Arts and Crafts style with oak woodwork and oak floors. The building is in the heart of Lyons, Kansas, at the intersection of Main Street (US Hwy 56) and Grand Street (KS Hwy 14) – the edge of the town’s commercial center. The front entrance of the Sheriff’s living quarters fronts Main Street. A modest lawn gently slopes from the building to each of the two streets it borders on its corner lot. A small parking area is on the west side of the building along the alley. An easily discernable town feature, the water tower, is close by across Grand Street. The property is in very good condition and has had little alteration since its construction. Overall, it retains its historic integrity and character-defining features.

Elaboration
Overview
The Rice County Jail & Sheriff’s Residence is located at 120 E Main St in Lyons, Rice County, in Central Kansas. Lyons sits between Great Bend and McPherson, Kansas, in the Kansas plains and open prairie. Rice County’s seat is the city of Lyons, with a population of around 10,000 in 2017. The area is primarily agricultural-related industry. The commercial core is roughly four blocks along East Ave N and the blocks on the county courthouse's north and south sides. The Jail & Sheriff's Residence sits on the southwest corner of E Main Street and N Grand Avenue/16th Road. To the north, west, and south of the Jail & Sheriff’s Residence are more commercial and light industrial buildings; the east is a gas station and large city park and school. The north boundary is E Main St, the east is S Grand Ave, the south is the adjacent property, and the west is the alleyway. The Jail & Sheriff’s Residence is the single and large building on the property. Sidewalks are leading from the north and east entrances to the surrounding block’s sidewalk. On the west side of the building is a small gravel parking area.

Front (north) façade of Jail & Sheriff’s Residence (2021)
Exterior
The two-story, red-brick structure has a running bond, a hipped tile roof, and rests on a foundation of limestone blocks. The basement is slightly raised and features short rectangular windows. It is distinguished from the first-floor by the dividing solider-brick row running across the facades. The windows are all similarly sized double-hung windows with a solider-band above and stone lintel. All are original double-hung three-over-one wood windows unless otherwise noted. The first-floor windows have exterior storm windows, while the second-story windows have interior security bars built-in the walls; both have original double-hung windows. The only ornament on the elevations is the paired decorative brackets (four sets on each elevation) under the overhanging eave.

The north (main) elevation features six bays, nonsymmetrical aligned, except the two end bays. The fourth bay from the east on the first level contains a one-story Prairie-style brick porch, stairs, and main entrance to the residence. The porch is covered by terra cotta tiles, has brick columns extending from the brick railing, and an unadorned cornice. The main door is not original to the residence.

The east elevation features three nonsymmetrical bays; the first level features a window, door, window, all evenly positioned. The entrance has five concrete steps, metal handrails on both sides, and a wood-framed gabled roof with tiles. Two wood 4x4s have been added to support the entrance roof. The second level features a single window on each end closer to the building's corners and a set of windows in the middle bay above the entrance.

The south (rear) elevation has four nonsymmetrical parts. The first level features a set of paired windows in the tow end bays and the west-central bay. The east-central bay consists of the enclosed one-story brick vestibule with a hipped tile roof, a single door with one adjacent narrow window (facing south), and a set of pairs windows on the east and west sides. There is a set of five steps with a metal-pipe railing on both sides. To the east of the vestibule is a single window. The second level has seven evenly spaced windows from west to east; the sixth window is a small fixed square window with stone lintel.

The west elevation has three bays; the basement level features a drive below grade, on the southern third of the building leading to a garage door; a best estimate for the garage is 1983. The first level has three windows (one in each bay) stepped in several feet from the corners. The middle window is smaller than the others but still a double-hung three-over-one original window. The second level has four openings, door, window, window, door. The doors appear to be alterations and have several rows of brick above for infill. The doors are connected to a metal fire escape landing and single stairs. The two windows are double-hung wood windows but are shorter than the other windows.

Interior First Floor: Residence & Sheriff’s Office
The first floor served as the residence of the presiding Sheriff. A northern-oriented façade provides the main entrance to the living quarters revealing a spacious living room. An oak-trimmed double-doorway opening accesses the east-west corridor, which provides primary access to the residence, as well as access to the Sheriff’s office and booking room at the far east end of the hall. Baseboards, doorways, and hardwood floors throughout are oak; the floors were refinished in 2005. Bedrooms adorn either side of the bathroom. Directly across the hall from the oak-trimmed doorway is another doorway, trimmed likewise, leading to the moderately sized dining room. On the rear of the dining room’s east wall is a doorway to the kitchen – the dumb waiter, utilized to raise plated inmate meals to the upper-level jail and in turn lower the empty trays and soiled utensils back to the kitchen, is in the opposite corner. Near the dumb waiter, a doorway reveals the corridor stretching back to the tiled bathroom to the west, and to the east, the Sheriff’s office and booking room.

Outside entry may also be gained on the east side of the building (facing KS Hwy 14) into the booking room and Sheriff’s office in the southeast corner. In the northeast corner is a juvenile / emergency cell, which is fully concrete walls, and an open metal toilet and sink. This eastern side of the building is today used as an Airbnb room with an accompanying bathroom. The juvenile and emergency cell had a shower, toilet, and berths along the wall.

Interior Second Floor: Jail

Directly above, in the northeast corner of the second-floor confinement area, is a women’s cell with the same equipment and physical layout.
The eastern side is constructed similarly to the upper-level jail – secured by concrete floors and a steel ceiling. Alluding to its original function, the windows of this northeast lower level room of the building are barred. A zig-zag stairway of concrete steps and iron handrails leads to the second-floor jail cells from the corridor accessible from the east entrance. With the women’s cell and hospital ward on the east side of this hallway, the business-side (confinement area) is on the west. At the south end of the corridor is a padded cell for insanity cases.

The jail portion of the building remains largely unchanged from its original state, with the north and south sides being a mirror image: (2) six-bunk cells with steel shelf beds surrounded by heavy iron bars and a caged commons area complete with stainless steel shower and toilet, metal bench seating and metal counters. The stainless steel shower and toilet replaced the original porcelain fixtures sometime after 1996. The dumb waiter sits outside of the commons area. A small aperture approximately 3 inches by 8 inches appears above the metal counter in each commons area through which meal trays were passed for prisoners. At each end of the corridor is a locked box housing the lever mechanism by which any jail door, or combination of jail doors, may be opened or closed at once, respective to each side of the mirror image design.
The confinement area is encircled by a corridor four feet in width. The jail is arranged such that two locked doors must be passed through in order to access the actual confinement area. All iron doors and cell walls remain intact. Jail cell doors are still in working order.

Basement

Leading from the west side alley is a concrete driveway that descends below grade, with concrete walls on either side, to a basement garage door.
Laundry facilities and a workroom are located here, along with plenty of storage. A concrete stairway with iron handrails leads to the Sheriff’s office and booking room along the east side on the main level. This portion of the basement is unfinished with limestone foundation walls and exposed utilities. The living quarters are currently available for rent as a two-bedroom Airbnb. The east side of the main level is available for rent as a Sheriff’s Office AirBnB. The second-story jail is available for rental on a case-by-case basis for bachelorette parties and other special events. The walls have been finished and there are little to no details in this space.

Condition & Integrity
The main and upper floors of the jail and residence retain high integrity of design, materials, and workmanship. The building retains its original location, setting, feeling and association as well. The residence retains its original wood flooring, trims around the windows and original doors, spatial arrangement, plaster walls, openings, and features in the bathroom. The kitchen has had minor alterations, but none that impact the integrity of the property. The sheriff’s office and booking room have been altered, but the changes are minor and do no impact the integrity. The jail and upper floor is fully intact and retains its historic characteristics, features, cells, and mechanisms. The building has excellent integrity and is a great example of this type of property.

The period of significance is 1929 when the Jail & Sheriff's Residence was constructed. The Sheriff occupied the residence portion until 1985, and the jail was used until 2001 when a new facility was constructed. Though the period does not extend through the use of the building, it is important to note that the residence was used by the Sheriff until 1985.

Summary

The Rice County Jail and Sheriff’s Residence is locally eligible for the National Register of Historic Places under Criterion C in the area of Architecture. The upper level of the building functioned as the county’s jail from 1929 until 2001 when the new Rice County Law Enforcement Center and Detention Facility was opened just outside Lyons city limits. The main floor served as the Sheriff’s living quarters until 1985, when the Sheriff moved off-site. Designed by architect Roy W Stookey of Ottawa, Kansas, the building was constructed in 1929 and maintains a high level of architectural integrity and character-defining features. It is a good local example of a Prairie-style building.

Elaboration

Lyons, Rice County

In the 1870s, the area was opened for homesteading. Several homesteaders, John Carlson, Andrew Johnson, C. S. Lindell, August Johnson, and more, began claiming their acres in Rice County. The early homesteaders were focused on rangeland with R. M. Hutchinson, A. J. Howard and J. E. Perdue brought in 4,000 head of cattle. In 1873 the Rice County Agricultural Society was established and held its first fair later that year. The agricultural industry included wheat, rye, barley, oats, potatoes, sorghum, cattle, sheep, and pigs. Rice County maintains a large agricultural industry in the area.

The first town established in Rice County was Atlanta, and it pre-dated the county. In December 1870, the town was laid out by “Atlanta Town Company,” approximately two miles south of present-day Lyons. The following spring, several buildings were constructed there. Atlanta was named the temporary county seat in 1871. Lyons (population 3,739) is Rice County's seat and is located in central Kansas along the historic Santa Fe Trail. It was incorporated as a city in 1880, the same year the Santa Fe Railroad was built through the town. Kansas has a long history of battles over County Seat positions. Residents to the south of Atlanta wanted the county seat in their town, Peace (now known as Sterling), and presented a petition to the county commissioners in 1876 asking that the matter be brought to a vote. The ballot asked whether citizens wanted the county seat to be located at Peace or at “County Centre,” the county’s geographic center. “County Center” received the most votes. With the election over, moving Atlanta to “County Centre” commenced. It was determined that an Atlanta hotel would be used for county purposes and moved to the actual center point of present-day Main and Grand Streets set on the southeast corner. In William G. Cutler’s History of the State of Kansas, he wrote this about Lyons, Rice County:

The city of Lyons was incorporated February 26, 1880, and W.T. Nichols was elected Mayor at the following April election. …At present there are in the village three dry goods store, four drug stores, five general stores, two groceries, six hardware and agricultural stores, two clothing stores, one furniture store, two jewelry stores, one harness shop, three millinery stores. There are also two blacksmiths, one carriage maker, one shoemaker, one painter, one barber, and carpenters and other craftsmen to fill up a thrifty and industrious community.\(^3\)

The present Rice County Courthouse was built in 1911, leaving the hotel building vacant for use as the very first jail in Lyons until the Rice County Jail and Sheriff's Residence was built in 1929. In great disrepair, by the mid-1920s the first jail was said to hold prisoners largely through the fondness of the matron's cooking (the Sheriff's wife) rather than the force of the building.

Jail & Sheriff's Residence

Architecture

The Arts & Craft Movement began in the mid-19th century to counter the world of industrialization and machine production. The movement began in the U.S. in Chicago and focused on simplicity and craftsmanship. It used flat planes and stylized elements combined with a sense of place and connection to the environment. The style came and went quickly with the development of World War I. The Prairie style often features a low-pitched roof, overhanging eaves, porches, and emphasis on horizontal lines, and square supports. One common type is the hipped roof, asymmetrical dominant form, with lower porches or wings. These character-defining features of the Prairie Style are present on the Jail & Sheriff's Residence.

The Rice County Jail and Sheriff's Residence is a masonry structure with low-pitched hipped roof featuring overhanging eaves. The building has a horizontal appearance, in that it is a rectangle with the main elevation on the long side. The porch at the residence entrance is has hipped roof and massive square supports and railing that helps to emphasize the low and horizontality of the porch. The running bond choice for the brick structure and the soldier-band at the basement, also emphasizes the horizontal and asymmetrical form, which is a main element of the Prairie Style. The interior of the Residence is accented by the amount of wood trim, doors, flooring, and openings creating a fluid and linear path through the structure.

In general, the plan submitted by Mr. Stookey had a modern home for the Sheriff and his family on the first floor and jail cells on the second floor. The plan included an elevator (which was not in the finished product) and a dumb waiter. The running theory at the time was such that any Lyons citizen would be proud to be incarcerated there. The Rice County Jail & Sheriff's Residence is a great local example of the Prairie Style and retains the character-defining elements of the style and its historic integrity. The building is a good example of this type of shared-use structure, which seemed to be a common choice for other Kansas Jails & Residence's constructed at this time.

Roy Wayland Stookley

Stookley was born in Belleville, Illinois, in 1884. He attended the Manual Training School of St. Louis and then graduated from the University of Illinois as a civil engineer and architectural engineer. Work building the city waterworks system brought him to Ottawa, Kansas, in 1906. There he met and married the daughter of George Washburn, Architect, in 1909 and began working with George P. Washburn & Sons, Architects. With George's blessing, Roy and George's son, Clarence, became partners, and Washburn and Stookey, Architects, was born, and they designed numerous public buildings in and around Kansas. Mr. Stookey was appointed State Architect by Governor Andrew Schoeppel in 1939, and he served in that position until his retirement in 1946.

Conclusion:
The Rice County Jail & Sheriff's Residence is a Prairie style combination building that features an upper floor jail with a holding room, solitary room, and separate women's and men's barred cells. The building was constructed in respond to a need from the community to detain persons. The residence building operated practically until 1985 when it was no longer used as a Sheriff's residence. The upper floor jail functioned until 2001 when it was closed. The Rice County Jail & Sheriff's Residence is eligible for listing in the National Register of Historic Places for Criterion C under ARCHITECTURE as a great example of this type of jail with historic integrity. Also, the building is included for its association with the local concerns from the community regarding the detainment of persons accused of a crime.
