At the dawn of the twentieth century "the people of Kansas were looking for new ways to define their communities," wrote Amanda Longesen in "Making a Unique Heritage," an article published in the autumn 2000 issue of Kansas History. "They were searching for a historical consciousness, a heritage specifically of, and for, Kansas." They found it in the story of Zebulon M. Pike's Pawnee Village, and five years before the centennial of his famous Southwest Expedition the Kansas Daughters of the American Revolution erected and unveiled a monument (depicted above) to the man and his "heroic" accomplishment. This special issue of Kansas History is our modest effort at commemorating the bicentennial of that memorable expedition and reflecting on its meaning to twenty-first-century Kansans.

Pike and his men did indeed hold a "grand council with the Pawnees at a Pawnee village" in late September 1806, explains Michael L. Olsen in one of this issue's essays. "Noting the Spanish flag flying over the village," so the story goes, "Pike demanded that it be taken down and a U.S. flag raised in its place. For some eager Kansans, this became the first U.S. flag flown in Kansas. In 1901, at the supposed site in Republic County, a twenty-six-foot-tall granite monolith was placed to mark the event. Today it is generally acknowledged that the Pawnee village Pike visited actually lay farther north, across the Kansas–Nebraska border, near Guede Rock." Unfortunately, the impressive, if misplaced, marker, which was integrated into the Pawnee Indian Museum State Historic Site for many years, was largely destroyed by a tornado in 2005.
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Volume 29</th>
<th>Spring 2006</th>
<th>Number 1</th>
</tr>
</thead>
</table>

ONE NATION AMONG MANY:
THE ORIGINS AND OBJECTIVES OF PIKE'S SOUTHWEST EXPEDITION
by Stephen G. Hyslop

"SENT OUT BY OUR GREAT FATHER": ZEBULON MONTGOMERY PIKE'S JOURNAL AND ROUTE ACROSS KANSAS, 1806
edited by Leo E. Oliva

ENEMIES AND FRIENDS:
ZEBULON MONTGOMERY PIKE AND FACUNDO MELGARES IN THE COMPETITION FOR THE GREAT PLAINS, 1806–1807
by Leo E. Oliva

ZEBULON PIKE AND AMERICAN POPULAR CULTURE, OR, HAS PIKE PEAKED?
by Michael L. Olsen

REVIEWS

BOOK NOTES

---

Special thanks to Leo Oliva for his contribution to and assistance with this special issue.

Editorial Advisory Board
- Thomas Fox Averill
- Gayle R. Davis
- Donald L. Fitch
- James L. Forsythe
- Kenneth M. Hamilton
- David A. Haury
- Thomas D. Isem
- Patricia A. Michaelis
- Rita G. Napier
- Pamela Rinney-Kehrberg
- James E. Shover

Kansas State Historical Society
- Jennie A. Chin
- Executive Director

Cover: Zebulon Pike negotiates with the Pawnees about raising the U.S. flag at their village, 1806. Painting by Michael Haynes. Back: The 1901 DAR monument to Pike at Pawnee Indian Museum State Historic Site, Republic County.

Copyright © 2006 Kansas State Historical Society, Inc. ISBN 0149-9114.

Kansas History (USPS 290 620) is published quarterly by the Kansas State Historical Society, Inc., 6425 SW Sixth Avenue, Topeka, Kansas, 66615-1099. It is distributed to members of the Kansas State Historical Society. Single issues are $7, double issues $12. Periodicals postage paid at Topeka, Kansas, and additional mailing office. Postmaster: Send address changes to Kansas History, 6425 SW Sixth Avenue, Topeka, Kansas, 66615-1099.

Printed by Allen Press, Inc., Lawrence, Kansas.