Describe present and historic physical appearance.

The Belleville United States Post Office (c. 1937-1938) is located at 119 18th Street in Belleville, Republic County, Kansas (pop. 2,805). The one-story ridge hipped, red brick building has a southern facade orientation. The building measures approximately sixty feet from east to west and one hundred and ten feet from north to south. A double door pierces the center of the building's facade. Steps lead up to the doorway. Two pairs of large, double hung windows surmounted by plain brick lintels and underscored by limestone sills flank the doorway. Nine windows of similar treatment pierce the east and west elevations of the building. A loading dock projects off the building's rear. This post office is an example of the smaller class C or D standardized design type that was repeated throughout the county during the 1930s.

The mural "Kansas Stream" was installed on the east wall of the Belleville Post Office lobby above the postmaster's door and the two bulletin boards which flank it. This is the traditional location for Section artwork in the smaller class C and D post offices. "Kansas Stream" is an oil on canvas mural of a scene on the Republican River near Scandia. Four horses stand on a dusty clay bank above a winding stream. Gnarled green trees and shrubbery rise from the lavender earth, filling the space across the center of the canvas. White clouds billow in the blue sky on this hot summer day. The mural measured 13' x 4'4" before installation, a cornice moulding surmounts it. The mural does not arch around the doorway surround as in so many cases, but rests on top of it.

The mural was installed on September 27, 1939. It was not varnished. The treatment for cleaning recommended by the artist called for the use of pure water, Ivory soap, and a soft brush. In August, 1973 the mural's condition was assessed as good, it remains as such and according to current information has not been restored.

A varnished, wooden vestibule projects into the lobby, cutting off some view of the mural. This is a traditional design feature found in most of the post offices included in this nomination. The floors and wainscotting retain their original tiles. The post master's door and bulletin boards retain their varnished surrounds. The original hanging light fixtures have been replaced with almost flush mounted fluorescent lights.

The Belleville United States Post Office (c. 1937-1938) is being nominated to the National Register as part of the Kansas Post Office Artwork (1936-1942) Thematic Resources nomination at the local and state levels of significance under criteria A and C for its historical association with the Treasury Department's Section program and for the artistic significance of the mural that it contains. The mural, "Kansas Stream", was painted by Lindsborg, Kansas artist Birger Sandzen (1871-1954) in 1939.

"Kansas Stream" is an oil on canvas mural of a scene on the Republican River near Scandia. Four horses stand on a dusty, clay bank above a winding stream. Gnarled green trees and shrubbery rise from the lavender earth, filling the space across the center of the canvas. White clouds billow in the blue sky on this hot summer day. Sandzen takes a familiar regional scene from north central Kansas, making the ordinary extraordinary by his attention to light and color. The colors are bright and naturalistic. "Kansas Stream" is typical of Sandzen's landscapes of the 1930s. Sandzen is classified as a post impressionist landscape artist who painted in a style reminiscent of Van Gogh. Similar landscape murals hang in the Lindsborg and Halstead post offices. "Kansas Stream" is representative of the realistic illustrative landscape paintings that were funded under the Section program.

Sandzen is regarded as one of the most prominent Kansas landscape artists, deriving his national reputation mainly from his lithographs, woodcuts, linocuts, and dry points. Sandzen found guidance and teachings in nature, and studied the Kansas landscapes around him. He believed in the accessibility of art for the general public, and sold many of his own pieces to raise money for the purchase of works by other artists. Sandzen was one of a group of artists who founded the Prairie Print Makers, a group that espoused the theory of the accessibility of art for the common man. Although Sandzen gained national fame in the 1920s, and was elected as an associate member of the Taos Society, he continued to live in Lindsborg, where he had taught language and art at Bethany College since his immigration from Sweden in 1894.
Community reaction to the mural is recorded in the September 28, 1939 issue of the Belleville Telescope, the writer calling it "a realistic interpretation of a lazy, Kansas stream rounding the bend in its typically crooked path." The "Sandzen individuality" and the "fiery, tempestuous colors" are also noted. The post master reported that public reaction to the mural was generally favorable, although there were some who objected to the "Sandzen detail".

Sandzen received the contract for the mural on May 26, 1939. The mural was installed on September 27, 1939 on the east wall of the post office above the post master's door and the two bulletin boards that flank it. It measured 13' x 4' before installation, a wide cornice moulding surmounts the mural. The mural does not arch around the doorway surround as in so many cases, but rests on top of it. Sandzen received $670 for the commission. The Belleville Post Office is an example of one of the many smaller class C or D type post offices that received Section artwork in Kansas.
