7. Narrative Description

The Fairmount Apartment Building is a two-story brick building constructed in 1930 at the corner of 16th Street and Fairmount Avenue in central Wichita. The building features Mission Revival detailing with a shaped parapet, Spanish clay tile at the parapet and wall buttresses and a 2nd floor balcony over the central entry on the front facade. The buttresses framing the front facade and central entry bay vary in height, creating an asymmetrical pattern in contrast to the otherwise symmetrical facade. The apartment building recently underwent an extensive historic rehabilitation involving general repairs and fixture and finish upgrades. The exterior of the building retains a high degree of historic integrity clearly portraying the building's original design and detailing. The interior retains the original configuration of six apartments per floor and key character-defining features including louvered doors at apartment entrances, plaster walls, wood floors, and fireplaces with tile hearths in each apartment.

Setting

The Fairmount Apartment Building is located at 1702 N. Fairmount Avenue in Wichita, Sedgwick County, Kansas. The site is one block south of the main entrance to Wichita State University and situated in a residential neighborhood with single and multiple-family dwellings. Positioned on the northeast corner of the intersection of 16th Street and Fairmount Avenue, the building faces west fronting Fairmount. The building is set-back from the streets with a small lawn on the west and south sides of the building. A concrete sidewalk runs along the perimeter of the south and west sides of the site and a walk extends from the perimeter walk to the front entrance of the building. Paved parking abuts the building on the north accessed by a drive off of Fairmount Avenue, north of the building. A wood fence encloses a service area, located in the rear, east of the building.

Exterior

Rectangular in plan form, the building has a flat built-up roofing system with a parapet. The parapet has a tile cap on the north and south sides. The building is a two-story brick structure with a variegated wire-cut brick facade. The front facade is capped by a shallow mansard roof of red clay tile over each end bay. A shaped parapet with a stone cap, defines the center entry bay.

The front/west facade is distinguished by its Mission Revival detailing that includes wall buttresses, a clay tile mansard roof, shaped parapet, and upper balconies, as well as, subtle brick and stone detailing. The facade is comprised of three bays, defined by one-story brick buttresses that have a beveled cap of clay tile. The buttresses frame the central entry bay which projects from the front facade on the ground-floor creating a shallow balcony on the upper floor, over the entrance. The original door is in place at the main building entry; it is a single wood door flanked by sidelights, each with Mission-style vertical lights. The door is recessed and has been formerly enclosed by a glass air-lock. The entrance is framed by the brick buttresses with stone scroll detailing and the door opening is capped by a stone band with carved rosettes. The center bay is defined by a two-course arched brick surround on the upper floor over the entry. The arch frames a pair of 1/1 double-hung wood windows with an ornate carved stone panel in the arch over the windows.

The brick buttresses frame the end bays and a small brick planter spans between the buttresses on each side of the entry. The planters have a simple brick cap and wrought-iron railing. The end bays are comprised of a pair of 1/1 double-hung windows and a small arched double-hung window. A stone panel with rosettes is located above the pair of upper windows on the end bays and a wrought-iron railing is located at the sill.

The primary windows around the building are single and paired 1/1 double-hung replacement units (milled PVC replicating the style and profile of the original units). The small arched double-hung windows on the front facade are original wood windows.

The north and south facades are identical with an asymmetrical pattern of single and paired windows reflecting the configuration of three apartments on each side of each floor. Basement windows are above grade on the sides of the building. These windows are horizontal three-light steel awning windows with beveled concrete angling down to a simple brick sill. Window HVAC units are in-place in one window per apartment, a total of six windows on the north and south facades.

The east/rear facade is comprised of three bays. Two single windows are located on each floor at the end bays and a single door is located in the center bay. Modern gutters and downspouts are located on the rear facade.

Interior

The plan configuration of the rectangular building is a central corridor with three apartments on each side of the building, per floor. A partial basement is extant on the east half of the building comprised of a mechanical room on the north and small storage compartments for each apartment on the south. The basement is unfinished with concrete floors, concrete walls, and exposed floor joists at the ceiling. The west half of the building has a crawl space.

A small foyer at the front entry accesses the first floor corridor. The first floor is slightly above grade accessed by three steps off the foyer. Open stairways are located at the east and west ends of the corridor with arched openings defining the three apartment bays in the corridor. The wood stairs are carpeted and have plastered half-wall rails. The corridors walls and ceilings are plaster and the floors are wood with a carpet runner. The corridors doors to the apartments are a set of two doors comprised of a louvered outer door and the original 1/1 paneled wood doors extant in some locations. Original doors retain their original hardware with a hammered finish in some locations.

The building features three apartment configurations that vary based on location (east, west, and central apartments). The apartments were historically comprised of four rooms: the living room, kitchen/dining, bedroom, and bath, as well as two closets. The existing configuration is an open living/dining/kitchen space with original walls enclosing the bedroom, bath, and closet. The walls are textured plaster and ceilings are sheetrock. The floors are generally oak, with a natural or painted finish exposed in the living areas. Bedrooms floors are carpet and bathrooms are ceramic tile. Historic wood trim includes the door and window frames and baseboards, all with a simple profile and painted finish. Most doors within each apartment are the original 1/1 paneled wood doors with original chrome Art Deco hardware and glass knobs. The living rooms feature a brick fireplace and some units retain the original glazed tile hearth.

The rehabilitation project involved installation of new building systems including HVAC, electrical and plumbing. All plumbing and light fixtures are modern replacements.

Summary

The building retains a high degree of historic integrity on the exterior. It maintains the original plan configuration and number of apartment units as well as key interior character-defining features including plaster walls, wood floors, interior trim, fireplaces, the louvered apartment doors and paneled wood doors with original hardware. The apartment building clearly conveys the defining characteristics of the purpose-built apartment buildings constructed in Wichita's residential neighborhoods in the 1920s and 1930s. The Fairmount Apartments meet the registration requirements identified in the MPDF Residential Resources of Wichita, Sedgwick County, Kansas, 1870-1957 and is an excellent example of the Conventional Low-Rise Apartment Building in Wichita.

8. Statement of Significance

The Fairmount Apartments, later renamed The Granada Apartments, is a two-story brick building with Mission Revival detailing. Constructed in 1930, the building was designed to provide 12 apartments in the Fairmount neighborhood immediately south of Wichita State University. The apartment building is being nominated to the National Register of Historic Places under the Residential Resources of Wichita, 1870-1957 Multiple Property Listing (Morgan and Hammond, 2007) as a representative of the Conventional Low-Rise Apartment Building Property Type. It is significant under Criterion C as a representative of the Conventional Low-Rise Apartment Building and an example of a Mission/ Spanish Colonial Revival apartment building.

The Fairmount Apartments

Fairmount Apartments was named for the area in which the building was located, in the block immediately south of the main entrance to Wichita State University. Founded in 1887 by the pastor of the Plymouth Congregational Church in Wichita, Fairmount College was to be a school for young women in the fashion of Holyoke College in Massachusetts. After setbacks resulting from Wichita's financial crash in the late 1880s, the school reorganized and opened as an academy in 1895 (becoming Fairmount College in 1897). The church and college remain a prominent presence in the area known as Fairmount Hill. Fairmount College became the Municipal University of Wichita in 1926 and Wichita State University in 1964. The Fairmount Congregational Church located their church at 16th and Fairmount in 1897 and built the existing church at that location in 1911 (replacing the first church that had been moved onto the site).<sup>1</sup> The Congregational Church and two related residences are listed on the National Register of Historic Places.

Trolley service, began in Wichita in 1881 and the last electric trolley was retired in 1935. The original trolley lines connected Fairmount College to the rest of the city. Public transit influenced the location of early apartment buildings, as well as, residential neighborhoods. The period between the end of World War I and the start of the Great Depression was a boom not unlike the 1880s in Wichita. The burgeoning oil and gas, and airline industries created an increasing demand for housing throughout the city. Local developers and contractors responded to the need by investing in the construction of family apartment buildings. By 1927 there were 91 apartment buildings listed in the Wichita City Directory, a number that increased nearly three-fold by 1947.<sup>2</sup>

J.I. Graham was granted a building permit in September, 1929 to construct a 12-family apartment building, with 8-car garage at 1702 Fairmount; the cost of the project was estimated at $35,000.<sup>3</sup> John I. Graham was listed in the 1930 Census as a carpenter at age 24 and married to Charlotte, age 20. They lived in one of the apartments at 1702 Fairmount.<sup>4</sup> Graham was not a well-known or prolific builder. The Fairmount apartments were the third of three known apartment buildings that Graham built in 1928 and 1929. He received a permit to build a 12-unit apartment building at 722 N. Market in December of 1928 and a 12-unit building at 718 N. Market in May of 1929.<sup>5</sup> They were known as the Jayhawk and Alcoba Apartments, respectively.<sup>6</sup> The apartment buildings on North Market are extant. The Alcoba at 718 N. Market is a twin unit to the Fairmount and retains its original entry configuration (where the glass vestibule was added to the Fairmount).

Given its proximity to Wichita State University (known as Municipal University of Wichita when the Fairmount Apartments were built), the apartment building at 1702 Fairmount currently serves the housing needs of WSU students and young professionals. However, at the time of its construction, few of the residents had ties to the University. The Fairmount Apartments were not yet listed in the 1930 Wichita City Directory but were listed in the 1931 Directory. At that time, there were seven tenants listed, primarily clerks and managers. One tenant, Theo Schreiber was a professor at University of Wichita. Ten tenants were listed at the 1702 address in the 1932 Directory including Mr. Schreiber and Harry Goerger, Director of Physical Education at University of Wichita. The other eight tenants included an oil operator, salesman, proofreader and clerks. In 1937, Faye Ricketts was the only tenant listed who was employed at University of Wichita. Seven other tenants included three salesmen, a switchman for Missouri Pacific and a compositor for McCormick Armstrong. The 1942 City Directory listed twelve tenants including an inspector with the Fire Department, landman for Shell Oil, ROTC Sergeant, a Secretary and a Custodian at the University, a manager of a pet food company, and two Boeing employees.<sup>7</sup>

The Fairmount Apartments were continually listed in the Wichita City Directories through the 1960s. The name of the apartment building was later changed to The Granada.

Architectural Significance

Mission or Spanish Colonial Revival is categorized as one of the late 19th and 20th century revivals, and often used synonymously with Spanish Revival and Spanish Eclectic. The Spanish Colonial Revival style was popularized through the designs of Bertram Grosvenor Goodhue at the 1915 Panama California Exposition in San Diego.<sup>8</sup> As noted in the Residential Resources MPS, Goodhue broadened the interpretation of Spanish Colonial architecture by incorporating design elements found throughout Latin America. Drawing from its Spanish Colonial roots, defining features of the Mission Revival style include the Mission-shaped dormer or parapet commonly with red tile roof covering and both symmetrical and asymmetrical facades.<sup>9</sup> Mission/Spanish Colonial Revival is not a dominant style of residential neighborhoods in Wichita but examples of the style exist in College Hill and other working-class neighborhoods.

The Fairmount Apartment Building does not fully embody characteristics of the style. The red brick facade is not typical of the Mission Revival style but the building's detailing clearly portrays Mission Revival influences. The features that distinguish the architectural style of the building include the curved, shaped parapet, the red clay tile, the central arch, and the balconies with wrought-iron rails. Mission influences, although subtle, are carried through to the building's interior with the incorporation of arched openings in the corridor and use of rough-textured plaster walls and ceilings throughout.

The building's reflection of Wichita's purpose-built apartment buildings is perhaps more significant than its reflection of a specific architectural style. The Fairmount Apartment Building continues to convey information about its historic context and period of construction and clearly meets the registration requirements identified in the MPDF.

The building retains integrity of design including its brick facade with stone and tile ornament. Additionally, the Fairmount maintains the plan configuration outlining public halls and apartment units and significant interior features and finishes that include louvered apartment doors, paneled wood doors with original hardware, textured-plaster walls, wood floors, wood trim, brick fireplaces and tile hearths. The period of significance for the property spans from its construction in 1930 to 1959, the fifty-year age threshold for historic properties.

Summary

The Fairmount Apartment Building is a traditional representative of the Conventional Low-Rise Apartment Building property sub-type, and meets the requirements as defined in the Residential Resources of Wichita 1870-1957 MPL. The two-story building was constructed in 1930 as a multiple dwelling having twelve apartments with private kitchens and baths, a single primary public entrance and no elevator. The building retains its brick facade and detailing characteristic of the Mission Revival style, and the basic plan configuration of a central corridor with apartments down each side. Also intact are significant interior finishes and features reflecting the building's original design and construction. The Fairmount Apartment Building is nominated to the National Register of Historic Places under the Residential Resources of Wichita 1870-1957 Multiple Property Documentation Form as a representative of the Conventional Low-Rise Apartment Building Property Type.
