The Philip S. Houston House was built in 1906 in Thomas County, town of Gem, Kansas. It is a two story Victorian/Queen Ann style house, situated on the corner of two main streets of town. Its prominence reflects the importance of its original owner, Mr. Philip Sherman Houston. The typical circular porch with its Scamozzi capitals atop five round columns, and banister with turned spindles, graces the South Main entrance. Two small screened porches on the East and West elevations offer additional entrances. Additional features of elaborate spindlework exterior ornamentation and exceptional windows of stained, etched and beveled glass conform to the Queen Ann style.ⁱ Its overall impression is asymmetrical with bay windows on the East and West and the extension of a large section on the North East facade.

The house sits on a concrete foundation that rises two feet above ground. The entire house is sided with 4" wooden clapboards. The two bays each have three windows. The window on the East bay has a fanlight of beveled glass on the upper section. On approaching the Front door, one is greeted by an etched glass door, a stained glass window from the Living Room to the left and a multi-paned window to the right. This diamond shaped multi-paned window treatment is repeated in four other windows around the House, one allowing light on the stairway landing. Additional windows are one over one.

There are six dormers giving the house a varied steep roof line. Steep cross-gabled roofs are typical of a Queen Anne home.ⁱⁱⁱ On the South elevation, there is a recessed upstairs balcony with turned balustrade overlooking the prominent front porch, complete with gingerbread - all elements are typical of Queen Anne style.ⁱⁱ

Other decorative elements include bargeboards on the South, East and West gables with finials at their tips, and a pediment over the front entrance porch with decorative detail. Lacy gingerbread graces the apex of the roof on the South, East and West gables.

On entering the house, one is met with a prominent paneled stairway to the second floor. On the left, pocketed, panel doors open to the South Parlor, with another door opening to the Dining Room. Dividing the Parlor from the Living Room is an ornate spindle archway. A second set of pocket doors open into the dining Room. Features of the dining Room include a bay window and a paneled wall cupboard with a pass through section to the kitchen. Adjacent to the Living Room is a bedroom and a hall way that leads to a bathroom and a large bedroom with an adjacent guest closet. All rooms on the first floor have ten foot tall ceilings and hardwood floors.

The plaster walls and ceilings are covered with vintage wallpaper. Each doorway is capped with detailed egg and spoon trim. Corner trim boards are throughout the house. All woodwork is finished with original varnish. The original steam heat registers are in each room of the house.

There are several original Victorian light fixtures through out the house, one pictured in the bedroom photograph submitted.

The only alterations to the house were made in the 1910's, when a large bedroom, guest closet and bathroom were added by Mr. Houston. This was done in the same style as the rest of the house. The fixtures in the upstairs bath room were removed at that time as there was a problem with enough water pressure from the windmill, the house being so tall. A small porch on the North East corner, with a flat roof, was removed from the House in the early 70; according to Mrs. Neville.

The house has not been occupied since 1973, but is in remarkable condition. One upstairs bed room sustained water damage to a previous roof leak and another bedroom needs to be repapered. The house needs exterior painting and the colors of light yellow, gold, blue and maroon will be used in order to mirror the colors in the stained glass window on the South elevation. This was typical basis color choices in Queen Annes across the country.^{iv} Its original colors were light brown with white and black trim, though at some point the whole house was painted white.

Also needed are a new electrical system, and heating and air conditioning. The original curved porcelain lavatory, toilet and claw foot bathtub will remain in the first floor rest room when the house is replumbed. The Scamozzi capitals of the five round front porch columns were partially missing but reproductions have been found. The missing North East porch with it's flat roof will also be replaced. None of these restorations will detract from the historical integrity of the property. The House had remained in ownership by the Houston family from 1906 to 2002.

The House was moved eight miles, within Thomas County, from Gem to Rexford in May of 2002. The daughter of P.S. Houston, Mrs. Maxine Neville, offered to donate the House to Shepherd's Staff as an alternative to her demolishing the house. felt it is a significant cultural resource that should be preserved and agreed to pay for its relocation . The move was accomplished by Ball and Sons, utilizing state of the art, hydraulic equipment. Every care was given to prevent damage to the house and this was accomplished without incident. The move was thoroughly documented by photographs and video.

The house originally set on a level lot, facing the South. On the West side of the house was a street and on the South side of the house was a street in the center of town. Great care has been taken to orient the House in the same directions and the same distance from the bordering streets in the center of Rexford. The same railroad tracks traverse the two adjacent towns, and the house is still in close proximity to the town's church, as it was in Gem. The original hitching post which contributes to the historical context has also been moved to the exact orientation to the house that it formally held. The two towns shared cultural context and were established in the same time frame. Therefore the relocation of the house he built and occupied has minimal affect to the historical and architectural integrity of the property.

In the next section, the significance of Mr. Houston will be described . Because of his State wide significance and influence, his "community" was all of Thomas County , not just the town of Gem. Not only did his extensive farming, ranching and real estate endeavors throughout North West Kansas sustain this, he also had significant relationships with close relatives and friends in Rexford.

The Houston House (1906) is being nominated to the Register under criteria B and C for its historical association with Philip Sherman Houston and for its architectural significance as an example of the Queen Anne style.

From 1879 when the first brave settlers arrived in the area, until 1884, there were scant families homesteading in Thomas County. They faced hot and dry weather and in the winters, often blizzards. Yet in 1885, it was "the year the settlement came in", building soddies and claiming sections of land. (A History of Gem, Kansas, Bill James and Marge Brown) Rexford, Gem and Colby were being incorporated at this time.

Philip Houston's father, John Houston, was born in Union county, Tennessee. He "enlisted on the side of the Union in the Civil War, fighting in the battles of Shiloh, Antietam, Chancellorsville, Chickamauga and in the Atlanta campaign. After moving from Union County in 1880, he brought his family West. He established his home in Thomas County in 1886."ⁱ John became a prominent farmer and stock raiser, and was included in the Patrons Reference Directory of Thomas County, Standard Atlas of Thomas County, KS. ^v

Philip Houston's grandfather, William Henry Houston, was also born in Union County, Tennessee in 1807. He was the youngest brother of General Samuel Houston, the great Texas general and statesman. ⁱⁱ

It was in 1886 that Philip Houston came to Thomas County in a covered wagon, with his parents, two brothers and a sister. Philip was born in Union County, Tennessee April 27, 1875. He spent his first twenty one years on his father's farm on Section 30, S Range 31W, Township 7 in Thomas County. ^v This section was three miles east, one mile south, and one-half mile east of Gem. ⁱⁱⁱ

On May 18, 1898 Philip married Caroline Lutgen, whose parents, Athenus and Sarah, had homesteaded south of Rexford. The Lutgens were prominent Rexford citizens. Philip and Caroline had five children, John Ross, Glen, Twila, Wanda, Ariel and Maxine. ⁱⁱⁱ

"In 1906, Philip Houston took over the supervision of some 7,500 acres of ranches and farm land in Thomas County. He became an extensive Hereford cattle raiser and feeder, having from 700 to 800 head on his pastures. He did much to promote the fine Hereford stock. He also raised and sold horses and mules.

He was engaged in the real estate business, and operated the Gem State Bank which was established in 1905. He built elevators in Gem, Halford, Levant and Goodland. He was a director in the Kansas Central Indemnity Company at Hutchinson and in the Capital Livestock Insurance Company in Topeka. He was also treasurer of the Hopper Oil and Gas Company of Decatur County." (A History of Gem, Kansas) He is pictured on page 91 , Portrait Department of the Standard Atlas of Thomas County,KS.

The Gem State Bank was established in 1905, to care for the growth of agriculture in Thomas County during the early 1900's. "As a result there was a heavy demand for loans so banks grew and prospered... It continued to prosper with the increase in farm activity brought about by World War I." (A History of Gem, p 52) Mr. Houston was a co-founder and became the President in 1911..

Reflecting the early prosperity of Thomas County, it was in 1906, that Philip Houston built his Queen Anne Victorian home for his wife and two children, John Ross and Glenn. Ariel, Wanda and Maxine were born in the house later .Reflecting Philip's prominence, it was the largest house in the town, situated on the Main Street. It was the horse and wagon days and thirty to 40 wagon loads of wheat was hauled in a day to the elevator in Gem. A hitching post was prominent at the front of the Houston House to accommodate his guests. That original hitching post stands in front of the Houston House today.

In 1909 Philip partnered with Mr. W.O. Eaton to form the Eaton- Houston Land Company, selling land in Thomas, Sheridan, Logan, Decatur and Rawlins counties., again giving leadership to Northwest Kansas' ^{iv}

The March 16, 1911 record blizzard, was followed in 1913 by the "Blown Area", nine miles wide and twenty miles long from Colby to Rexford. This was the cause of many farmers to begin to leave the area.

His daughter, Maxine Houston Neville, reported in a taped interview that her father was approached by the Republican committee to run for Congress and another time to run for Governor of the State, but declined each time, preferring to attend to his large family and his many business enterprises.

Mrs. Neville also discussed Philip's close friendship with Ben Foster, a Rexford citizen who held vast acreage (50,000) as a Hereford cattle raiser, visiting him often in Rexford as a fellow cattle raiser. As Mrs. Houston's uncle Dr. B.J. Patterson, was a prominent physician in Rexford, the Houston family spent much time visiting relatives and shopping in that then thriving community.

"Philip Houston exhibited his social responsibility as he was a member and treasurer of the Baptist church, and was affiliated with St Thomas Lodge No 306, Ancient Free and Accepted Masons, Sunlight Lodge of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows, and Rexford Camp of the Modern Woodmen of America. He was a member of the Kansas Bankers Association and the American Bankers Association."¹ He was truly an influential citizen of the county and state at large.

Hardships of the times fell upon Thomas County and the Nation in the early Thirties caused by the decrease in the farmers' prosperity and the Great Depression. "This same year there was the worst dust storm in history, followed by swarms of grasshoppers devouring the meager crops. Many, many farmers left in despair. On August 24, 1932, the Mr. Houston's bank was closed by order of it's Board of Directors.

1941 brought rain and a record crop to those were able to keep their land (Land of the Windmills), including the Houstons.

"P.S., as he was known throughout the county and state, never tired of paying tribute to this land he so loved and to the stamina and foresightedness of those who helped develop it into the great wheat belt is has become..

As his health failed he was forced to retire from active civic participation. However he never ceased to continue in his chosen fields of stock raising and farming and to maintain a keen interest in the happenings of his adopted state and in the progress of Thomas county in particular." (The Colby Free Press-Tribune, Colby, Kansas)

Mr. Houston died in 1958, leaving the Houston House to his wife Carolyn. She resided in the House until her death in 1970 and then their son Glen lived there until his death in 1973. After that the House was cared for by daughters Twilla and Maxine, although it was unoccupied. In 1921, Mrs. Neville chose to donate the House to the Shepherd's Staff, Inc, a non profit organization rather than to dismantle it.

Now appropriately situated in Rexford, KS, the Houston House retains its architectural beauty and integrity, reflecting the wealth of by- gone days and the state wide significance of its owner, Mr. Philip Sherman Houston.
